Forecast for Saturday 10 Jul 2021

Weather: Cloudy for the majority of Saturday, but with a few sunny spells breaking through at times. Scattered showers will develop by late morning, possibly becoming heavy at times this afternoon with a low risk of thunder. The shower risk then decreases this evening and overnight.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 800m: 60% through today.

Visibility: Although most of the cloud will remain above summit level, variable amounts will drop lower to 500-600m through today, bringing limited visibility to higher slopes. The visibility will then drop further in any showers through today.

Meteorologist's View

Although showers will be scattered today, they will still make slopes and paths wet. Thus, care should be taken and appropriate footwear be worn. Also, any sunshine that breaks through will be strong and so protection will be required.

Forecast for Sunday 11 Jul 2021

Weather: Low cloud covering the park through the first half of the morning, but predominantly dry with just the odd shower possible through the morning. The low cloud will generally lift through the second half of the morning, but it will remain cloudy overhead during the afternoon and evening. More scattered showers developing during the afternoon, some of which may be heavy and persisting into the evening.

Maximum wind: Winds on the summits southerly 15mph, gusting 25 mph.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 800m: 30% through the first half of the morning, increasing to 60% from then on.

Visibility: Low cloud with bases 400-500m covering the park through the morning, bringing poor visibility to summits and higher slopes. This cloud generally lifting to above the summits toward midday, but with scattered amounts remaining at lower levels at intervals through the day. Visibility also lowering in the showers developing through the afternoon and evening.

Temperature: Valleys: Plus 12 Celsius, rising to plus 18 Celsius.
At 800m: Plus 9 Celsius
Freezing level: Above the summits
